

Nikos Tzanakis, MD, PhD

Professor in Pneumology, Medical School University of Crete

Head of the Department of Respiratory Medicine, University Hospital of Heraklion

Nikos Tzanakis MD, PhD, is Professor in Pneumology. He is leading the department of Pneumology, in University Hospital 35 beds including Pulmonary Function Lab, Bronchoscopy unit, Sleep apnea Lab, and the Dept Thoracic Medicine of Internal Medicine in Medical School with 10 research workers and 30 Postdoc students. Professor Tzanakis has published more than 160 papers in peer-reviewed journals and has written chapters in 13 books or series on respiratory diseases. His paper's total impact factor is more than 650 and his research work has been cited more than three thousand times (4500). His h-index is 37. He is member of the international societies ATS and ERS, and serves 10 journals as reviewer. His research is particularly concerned with epidemiology, pathophysiology and management of chronic obstructive lung diseases and Asthma.