

Personal Biography: Joseph Jacob

Joseph Jacob qualified as a doctor at Imperial College School of Medicine and trained as a radiologist at Kings College Hospital, London. During his training he worked for Medecins sans Frontieres for 2 years and still works as a teleradiologist for MSF.

Joseph spent his research years at the Royal Brompton Hospital, where he completed an MD(Research) with Imperial College under Professor David Hansell. Joseph is currently undertaking a year of research to pursue work related to his MD thesis with the Mayo Clinic Rochester, Minnesota, USA. His area of special interest is computer-based analysis of CT imaging in interstitial lung disease. He has co-authored over 40 papers, won several national and international awards for his work and was awarded the best thesis prize for 2017 by the National Heart and Lung Institute, UK.